The large archaeological site of Ostia Antica, an ancient sea-port by the mouth of the river Tevere, gives you the opportunity to picture a cosmopolitan town of two thousand years ago. Its inhabitants belonged to different cultures and professed different religions. Clues of their daily life are still under your eyes as you leisurely walk through this open-air museum to admire the mosaics of the Thermal Baths. You cross the Theater, you explore the Insulae built for the middle-class, and the wealthy Domus. You penetrate the narrow alleys to reach the Fullonica (the laundry) and you will be taken aback when you finally enter into the forerunner of today's restaurant: the Thermopolium...

At the end of the tour, return back by coach to Rome. Stop in the city centre, Time to eat something at leisure and the tour will continue with the visit of the Pantheon inside.
